Your team partner with you? You with your team partner?

My partner (Davit Babayan)and I worked very well together. We split up the work and we both shared our findings with each other. Communication was no problem, I sent out an email and I got a reply quickly. We moved to a third-party chatting app, and we talked and discussed.

Who decided what each person would do? Did they do their part? Did you do your part?

We both decided on what we should do. I choose to research about chaining and my partner decided to do open addressing. We both did our parts and sent our work to each other.

Did each member put in their share of the effort on the project in terms of preparation, meeting attendance, asking for help in a timely manner, etc?

Yes. My partner and I both worked very hard on this project. We both replied to our text messages on time and there was no waiting or any waiting on our part. All and all it was a good experience working with my partner.

How would you split the salary?

I think it would only be fair if we split the 1 million in half, I get 500,000 and my partner gets 500,000. We both did our parts and we both worked very well together.

How hard was this assignment?

This assignment was more difficult than the other assignments. Knowing and understanding how to code changing took an extremely long time. In the end, I was able to do it, but it took a long time.
